N1: Our story starts with two undercover cops talking about their mission.

GC: Remember, you are just here to get some coffee.

BC: What!?! Can’t I have a cool back story?

GC: NO!

N3: The bad cop messed up the whole mission last time with his crazy back story!

N2: The two undercover cops are looking for a bad guy.

N1: They know that he likes to get coffee at this coffee shop.

BC: Ok. I guess. I’ll just wait until somebody orders a latte.

GC: NO! Don’t you remember anything?

N2: The cops don’t know what the bad guy looks like.

N3: But they know that the bad guy likes to order a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

N1: That’s right. They are looking for a person to come into the coffee shop and order a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

BC: Right! Sorry! A double shot latte with extra foam....

GC: and cinnamon on top.

BC: cinnamon on top of what?

GC: The latte! The bad guy is going to order a

Everyone: double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

N3: The good cop needs to get the coffee shop ready.

GC: Help me write something on the “Today’s Special” board over there.

N1: The “good cop” was busy getting ready to sell coffee.

N2: The “bad cop” was thinking about what to write on the “Today’s Special” board.

N1: The “Today’s Special” board is important. It can help people decide what kind of coffee they want to drink.

N2: Or maybe the coffee shop has too much of one kind of coffee.

N3: They can get more people to buy it by putting that coffee on the “Today’s Special” board.

BC: OH! I know just the thing.

N1: Just after the “bad cop” put the “Today’s Special” board on the wall, a man walked into the coffee shop. And stands behind the “bad cop”.

N2: I will now be a coffee shop guest.

34 GC: What can I get for you?

35 N2: Oh, you can help this man. He was here first.

36 BC: I'm still thinking about what I want. You can order first.

37 N2: Can't decide on what to get? You can always look at the "Today's Special" sign.

38 BC: I don't need help making decisions. I'm a businessman.

39 N2: Oh really?

40 GC: OH NO!

41 BC: Yeah, I'm a business man with a business plan. I will make you money in business land. I'm definitely not a cop.

43 N1: The color drains from the good cop's face

44 N3: The coffee shop guest looks confused.

45 N2: Why'd you say you're not a cop?

46 BC: Because I'm not.

47 N2: I think you're a cop.

48 GC: Ok then, let's talk about coffee.

49 N1: So the guest looks at the menu and then looks at the "Today's Special" board.

50 N2: Hmmm.... I guess I should try something new. Ok, I'll get today's special.

51 GC: What's that?

52 N2: A double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

53 BC: HA HA! I've got you!

54 N3: The "bad cop" puts one handcuff on the guest and the other on himself!

55 GC: Wait. Did you put that on the special's board?

56 BC: Yeah! Did you think I was going to remember that?

57 GC: Do you normally get that?

58 N2: NO, I usually get a black coffee with four little cream buckets.

59 BC: Four cream buckets? Why don't you just get a latte?

60 N2: It's cheaper.

61 BC: That's a good business decision!

62 GC: This customer just got what you put on the "Today's Special" sign. That's not what he normally gets.

64 N1: The bad cop takes the handcuffs off the guest.

65 N3: The guest is still angry

66 N2: Why were you going to arrest ME!?! Is getting a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon 67 on top illegal now?

68 BC: Ha Ha. I wasn't going to arrest you. I'm a business man.

69 GC: Oh, shut up! I have to change the "Today's special" board.

70 N1: The good cop changes the "Today's special" board.

71 N3: Just then another guest walks into the coffee shop.

72 N1: I will now be the other coffee shop guest.

73 N2: Hey guy. You might want to go to a different coffee shop. This place is kind of strange.

74 BC: No, it's not. I'm a businessman here for my daily business coffee.

75 GC: Excuse me sir. I'm so sorry for how things have been today. I've made that coffee you ordered
76 and you can have it for free. I'm really sorry.

77 BC: That's not a great business decision. Giving things away for free... that's not how to make 78 money.

79 N2: And putting handcuffs on people is?

80 N1: Whoa, uh... what?

81 BC: Those were just business cuffs. They've got my business phone number on them.

82 N3: The coffee shop guests look at the handcuffs.

83 N1: They've got "911" written on them!

84 N3: "911" is the number for the police in America.

85 N2: You can't just put the word "business" in front of another word and make it be about "business"

86 N1: This is getting kinda confusing. I need my coffee in the morning or I can't even think.

87 BC: Thinking is a good business decision!

88 N1: Whatever guy. I need to get a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

89 GC: Really? Is that something you usually get?

90 N1: Yeah. I get it every day.

91 GC: What do you get everyday?

92 N1: I get a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

93 N2: Hey "businessman" did you hear what coffee this guy gets everyday?

94 BC: What? NO. I was thinking about business.

95 N1: I want...

96 EVERYONE: a double shot latte with extra foam and cinnamon on top.

97 N3: The good cop and the coffee shop guest stare at the bad cop... (wait) for a long time...

98 BC: Oh yeah! Ha Ha! I've got you. Time for us to have a business discussion at the police station...
99 ah... my office.
